Research Infrastructure & Public Datasets

open-scholar-skill (2026–). Openly licensed research infrastructure for incorporating AI systems into scholarly work without degrading the integrity of results, in use among social scientists internationally. The suite structures the direction of AI agents across the stages of a study, from question formulation to manuscript preparation, and subjects each stage to verification: reconciling reported statistics against the underlying analysis, confirming that cited sources exist and support the claims attributed to them, and preventing restricted data from being transmitted beyond the researcher's own machine. Companion paper: "Vibe Researching" (Chinese Sociological Review, 2026). https://github.com/joshzyj/open-scholar-skill Social Movement Organization Testimony Before Congress, 1900–2000 (with Charles Seguin and Thomas Maher). A century-scale public record of social movement organization representation at U.S. congressional hearings, released with "A Seat at the Table" (Socius, 2023) and used in Social Forces (2024) and PLOS ONE (2020).

Anti-Asian and Chinese-language discourse corpora. Annotated corpora of anti-Asian sentiment and Chinese-language discourse from social media and video platforms, including the CNTweets-COVID19 corpus and the Multiplex Anti-Asian Sentiment datasets (WASSA 2022), supporting work in Nature Humanities and Social Sciences Communications (2023) and Language and Communication (2026).

GPS-derived activity-space segregation measures (with Siwei Cheng). Measures that treat segregation as a property of daily activity space rather than residence (Demography, 2025; RSF, 2025; Scientific Reports, 2023), extended under seed funding into indicators of community resilience for populations facing climate risk.
